

Signature Cocktails

One of the most prominent members of the Surrealist movement in Paris, Elsa Schiaparelli challenged her contemporaries with designs that explored themes of desire, death, and the subconscious with dreamlike originality.

Idiosyncratic and avant-garde, she was the first to design each of her collections around a central theme – from the revered Circus Collection, which contrasted joyful motifs with reminders of mortality, to the whimsical Pagan Collection, which explored classical mythology and natural metamorphoses.

Our signature menu pays homage to Schiaparelli's iconic collections of the 1930s, spanning the diverse influences of history, art, and the natural world. Using local ingredients, the cocktails combine flavours and textures to honour the boldness, creativity, and complexity of their inspirations.

Elsa's bar is named in honour of Elsa Schiaparelli, who was first introduced to Braemar by her great friend, Frances Farquharson, the first wife of the 16th Laird of Invercauld and former editor of Harper's Bazaar.

Schiaparelli was an Italian fashion designer who was part of the Surrealist art movement and worked closely with Salvador Dali and Man Ray throughout her life. Among her most significant legacies was the invention of 'Shocking Pink', a colour which you will see reflected in both this menu and the bar itself.

COCKTAIL MENU

Shocking Pink

KETEL ONE VODKA, CHAMBORD,
MAID OF BRUTON SPARKLING ROSÉ,
BEETROOT, DRAGON FRUIT

Elsa's signature colour, 'Shocking Pink', came to her one day when she closed her eyes, blinded by a vivid shade of pink that inspired many of her future designs. She debuted the colour in her Paris 1937 Collection, including in the packaging of a perfume which was itself named 'Shocking'. Beetroot-infused vodka lends the radiant pink hue to this cocktail, layered with rich Chambord and sparkling rosé.

NON-ALCOHOLIC

SEEDLIP GROVE, NOUGHTY ROSÉ SPARKLING
WINE, BEETROOT, DRAGON FRUIT,
SODA WATER

Harlequin

HENNESSY VS, GREEN CHARTREUSE,
RASPBERRY SODA, BOLLYWOOD CHAI,
LIME

Vibrant and theatrical, the Commedia dell'Arte Collection of 1939 explored the history and patterns of early Italian theatre. The daring Harlequin Coat was inspired by the costume, wit and mischief of one of its best-known characters, whom we echo in this playful cocktail. Smooth whisky is paired with complex Chartreuse and lifted by fizzy raspberry soda and Bollywood Chai.

Lavishly beaded and heralding images of the court of Versailles, the Zodiac Collection of 1938 focused on celestial and Baroque motifs, including Schiaparelli's beloved personal symbol of Ursa Major. Inspired by the glittering elegance of the collection, this cocktail combines gin with warming ginger, the subtle brightness of yuzu and umeshu, and the delicate aroma of jasmine.

Mistral

HAVANA 3YR RUM, WHITE PORT,
LEMONGRASS, LEMON VERBENA,
CUCUMBER, WATERMELON, WHITE GRAPE, SODA

The Parachute Collection of 1936 featured designs which were airy and full of movement, stemming from the designer's interest in aerodynamics. As a child, she was even said to have tested an umbrella as a parachute by leaping out of a window. Rum is paired with light fruit and soda, while the white port, lemongrass and verbena add zest and structure.

In her debut Stop, Look and Listen Collection of 1935, Schiaparelli said that she exercised only 'absolute freedom of expression and a daredevil approach, with no fear'. Paying homage to this unwavering boldness, this cocktail combines smoky mezcal and rich apple brandy with punchy fruit and spice.

Viewed by many as the pinnacle of her career, Schiaparelli's Circus Collection of 1938 captured the physicality of performance. Riotous and swaggering, it tempered a sense of joy with unmistakable darkness. Channelling the complexity of this collection, this cocktail combines warming Scotch and rye whisky with dark Pedro Ximenez and light Lillet Blanc.
